RUSSIAN BOMBARDMENT OF VARNA AND BOURGAS EFFECTIVELY RESUMED.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF THE BULGARIAN COAST.

EYE-WITNESS'S DESCRIPTION.

October 27, 11.50 p.m.
According to Reuter's correspondent at Malta an Eye-witness at the Bombardment of the Bulgarian Coast says: The bombardment was almost uninterrupted from one o'clock in the afternoon till seven in the evening. The ships engaged were mostly monitors, and destroyers with some cruisers, personally directed by Rear Admiral de Robeck. The marksmanship was splendid, the first shots were directed against the barracks at Dedegatch, which were full of soldiers who were seen rushing out in hundreds to seek shelter. The heavy guns shelled the barracks, whilst the destroyers directed their attention to the fleeing soldiers. Every building of military importance was rased to the ground. During the course of the bombardment a troop train passed along at full speed, but the destroyers chased it, shelling all the time, the shells fell thick in both the front and rear of it, but Eye-witness did not observe any strike it. The railway line was absolutely torn up and the station was wrecked, and numerous trucks, standing on the line blessed up mountain high, for these contained black powder for an ammunition factory, which was also wrecked. The soldiers repeatedly attempted to remove the trucks, but the flames, and the hail of shell, prevented them. Soon the trucks were a heap of ashes, and the volumes of black smoke from them hid the town; when the smoke cleared, the church appeared as the only lofty building standing.

THE NEW YORK SENSATION.

BITTER NEWSPAPER COMMENTS.

October 28, 4.30 a.m.
Reuter's correspondent at New York says that bitter comments continue as to the presence of German conspirators in the United States, and influential elements and the public Press are demanding the elimination of a national danger.

The New York Sun asks, if such crimes are essayed when the United States is neutral what would be the case if she were at war with Germany.

The New York Times ironically points out that the day on which the first arrests were made Dr. Dumba was ennobled: "This teaches us the Tuetonio idea of neutrality."

Meanwhile the police have arrested Max Breitang the fifth man on a charge of conspiracy to destroy munition ships and has been released on a bail of $25,000 which was furnished by O. Breitang, the owner of the Dacia.

THE SINKING OF THE GERMAN CRUISER.

AN AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT'S DESCRIPTION.

October 28, 4.30 a.m.
An American correspondent at Berlin says that the German cruiser, of the Prinz Adalbert class, was steaming by day in heavy weather when two torpedoes struck her almost simultaneously. The cruiser seemed to go into the air by an internal explosion and disappeared beneath the sea like a piece of iron. Survivors say they saw the tracks of two torpedoes almost parallel, from which it is assumed that the English submarine was equipped with the new double tube system.

Reuter's correspondent at Paris says that the resignation of the Cabinet is foreshadowed and the formation of a new Ministry of National Defence including the best brains in the Parliament. TWO MORE ENEMY AEROPLANES BROUGHT DOWN.

October 27, 12.30 a.m.
Field Marshal Sir John French issues a communique in which he says: Since October 24 the situation on our front has not changed. There has been mining activity on both sides, but the results are unimportant. The enemy's artillery has been active east of Ypres and south of La Bassée Canal, and our reply thereto has been most effective. Our airmen brought down two German aeroplanes yesterday; one fell in our lines and the other behind the enemy's front trenches.

GERMANS BADLY PUNISHED AGAIN.

October 28, 2.50 a.m.
A Paris communique says the French exploded a series of powerful mines near the Arras-Lille road, south-east of Neuville-St. Vaast, wrecking the German trenches and entanglements. The French infantry thereupon dashed through to the attack and occupied the craters, which they still hold despite a most violent bombardment and several counter-attacks in which the German lost heavily. French artillery likewise seriously damaged the enemy lines west of Soissons. The Germans renewed their attacks east of Rheims under cover of a cloud of gas. The French were prepared, however, and smashed the German onslaughts every where.

October 28, 4.20 a.m.
A Rome communique states that the Italians carried an enemy fort on the slopes of Guldilani and found the trenches choked with corpses. The Austrians in the Monte Nero region attempted a night attack with big forces. The Italians allowed them to approach within a short distance, then they poured in a hail of lead mowing down the enemy. A fierce artillery duel continued on the Carso plateau, where the Italians rushed some of the trenches.

MR. ASHMEAD BARTLETT AND THE DARDANELLES.

October 28, 4.30 a.m.
Mr. Ashmead Bartlett, in the course of a lecture at the Queen's Hall, said that no performance in the world's history was more remarkable than the manner in which the British got ashore at the Dardanelles and held on. Nothing, he said, but the superlativeness of the troops prevented disaster in the early days.

Are You One Of Them.

When the much-discussed question of the "placker" was broached at yesterday's meeting of the Legislative Council, it came as a painful surprise to learn that there are still between 100 and 150 able-bodied men who, for no valid reason whatever, are doing nothing to assist the Government at the present time. Are you one of them? The Volunteers, Reserves and Special Police are all doing their little bit and, as His Excellency the Governor explained, are enabling men from the regular garrison and from the police and other departments of the public service to join the forces at the front. They need more men and, if you have done nothing hitherto, join one of these useful organizations if you possibly can. By doing so, you not only respond to the King's appeal and relieve the burden of duty on the shoulders of those who have already volunteered their services, but you will also remove a stigma which will be attached in years to come to your name.

Daily Press.

The Solidarity of the Empire.

Organisation will give us life. It will provide the brain to direct and to control the united energies of a loyal people and to concentrate them upon the spot where they will achieve the best results. Chinese British subjects in the Straits Settlement form a large and important section of the community and the test which the war has applied shows their loyalty and patriotism to be of sterling quality. And, as it added, this fine spirit of loyalty we see animating peoples of every race and creed living under the protection of the British flag. How completely have our enemies been disappointed and confounded. They expected to see the great conglomerate of colonies and possessions comprehended in the British Empire disintegrate immediately war broke out, and the whole fabric of our empire crumble to pieces. Instead, the war has furnished to our enemies, as well as to our friends throughout the world, the most signal proofs of the unity and solidarity of the Empire—evidences which afford the most convincing and satisfactory assurance that our vast Empire, embracing, as it does a great variety of races and creeds, is governed on sound and just principles which have won the confidence, the respect and the admiration of all who dwell under the protection of the British flag.

China Mail.

Voluntarism Versus Compulsion in England.

In several sections of the country there is still too much avoidable idle time, too much distrust of employers (misplaced because the Government have severely and firmly limited profits), continued inaction to secure the monetary advantage of abnormal conditions by forcing increased wages, and a still growing irksomeness under the disciplinary measures imposed by the Munitions Act. The provisions of that Act are reasonable; if they err, it is in the present welfare and future interests of the workers. But the chief source of trouble lies in the men having been "spoiled." The remedy to-day is firm guidance back to the right path. The teaching and legislative and administrative encouragement of the doctrine of selfishness must end; an antidote must be administered. As we have said, a most effective weapon has been placed in the hands of the Government in the "roll-call." By its means each individual can be compelled to play his part, however great or small it may be, in the duty imposed collectively upon the nation. The "roll" may be called, but it is necessary that the call to attention in the ranks both of fighters and workers must be the word of command.

GENERAL NEWS.

President Yuan's Promises.
President Yuan Shih-kai is preparing a long despatch to the Tschenghuan concerning the restoration of the monarchy. He promises the formation of a real, responsible Cabinet for China if the coming conference of citizens' representatives favours a constitutional monarchy.

The Gayest City in Persia.
Shiraz, which seems likely to gain a sad notoriety in connection with the new troubles in Persia, has the reputation of being the gayest city in Persia, which may have something to do with the fact that it is the one Persian town where wine is made for sale, and hence a curious connection with Spain. When the Arabs invaded Persia they took back with them to Morocco grapes from Shiraz and wished to cultivate their new vines in Spain; accordingly they did so at a place called Xeres, that being the nearest Spanish equivalent to Shiraz, and the wine we call sherry is thus Persian in its origin and akin to Shiraz.

Hungshan Coal Mines.
Lately anthracite of superior quality has been produced from the Hungshan coal mine in Shantung, says the Peking Daily News. This coal burns without smell and smoke, and has been proved to consist almost entirely of carbon and the best kind ever discovered in this country. At present, the daily output is more than five hundred tons, with prospects of increasing to 13,000 tons in a couple of months. The miners have been increased to 1,500 men, with a staff consisting of thirty-one Chinese and twenty-six Japanese officers. All the small particles of coal from the mine are to be returned into coke in the vicinity to supply the needs of the Chinese Navy. Twenty-one selling shops have recently been inaugurated along the Chao Tsi line for the sale of the anthracite.

Budgets.
"It took Mr. Lloyd George," writes "C. P." six hours to introduce his Peace Budget of 1909, when no money was wanted save that required for the ordinary services of the country, and the only war which loomed on the horizon was a fostered war of classes. It took Mr. McKenna seventy-five minutes to explain the greatest Budget ever introduced in the history of the civilized world. For clarity of statement, grasp of the subject, and definiteness of figures, it was the greatest effort in my recollection. And his was the 29th Budget statement to which I have listened."

Mr. Vincent Raven.
Few railwaymen are better known in the north of England than Mr. Vincent Raven, who has been appointed for the present to take the place of Sir Frederick Donaldson as chief superintendent of the railway system of the North-Eastern. Mr. Raven, who has for some time been connected with the Ministry of Munitions, succeeded Mr. Wilson Worsell in 1910 as chief mechanical engineer of the North Eastern Railway—not "chief engineer," as is stated by some of our contemporaries. Mr. Raven began his railway career on the North-Eastern, starting as a pupil of the late Mr. Edward Fletcher, and eventually became assistant mechanical engineer after serving under four successive chief mechanical engineers. He held the position of assistant mechanical engineer for fifteen years, and was then appointed chief.

Dr. E. J. Dillon's View.

Writing in the Contemporary Review Dr. E. J. Dillon, who has long made a special study of the politics of the Near East, passes an interesting comment (of course, from the British viewpoint) on the psychology of the Balkan States, the Roumanian leader, Bratiano, whom Dr. Dillon designates as "virtually the dictator of Roumania in the same sense and to a like extent that Giolitti was the dictator of Italy," Roumania's territorial demands in the present crisis, and her opportunity.

Of John Bratiano, chief of the Roumanian Liberal party, Dr. Dillon says that as the son of an eminent and respected statesman he entered public life "encircled by the halo of his father's prestige. Gifted with considerable powers, he owes more to birth than to hard work and self-discipline." He has become the real ruler of Roumania with a minimum of effort on his part. If he should declare war against Austria, Dr. Dillon believes that the decision would be generally acclaimed throughout Roumania. Just how far Bratiano can go in subordinating national ideals to party and personal interests Dr. Dillon does not pretend to say. He is inclined to believe that the weight of such public opinion and sentiment as exist in Roumania is on the side of the opposition leader, Take Jonescu, who would merge Roumania's territorial demands in the higher aims of the civilized peoples of Europe, and having helped to secure these, to establish a moral claim.

Roumania's position at the present juncture of her fortunes is summarized in the following imaginary statement attributed by Dr. Dillon to Premier Bratiano himself:

"The choice between belligerence and neutrality must be determined solely by the balance of territorial advantages which is offered by each. We cannot afford to repeat the mistake we made at the time of the Russo-Turkish war, when, in return for heavy sacrifices of blood and money, we were bereft of one of our most fertile provinces and were given a barren tract of land with indefensible frontiers and the undying enmity of its Bulgarian owners. This time there must be advantageous terms clearly specified, adequately guaranteed, and unless they outweigh those which we can obtain from the other side in return for mere inaction, we shall feel it our duty to reject them."

In his conversation with the Russian minister at Bucharest, the Premier made these demands: Transylvania, part of the Banat of Temesvar, the Roumanian districts of Bukovina, and of the two provinces of Orishana and Marmaros. As Dr. Dillon views the matter, these demands do not seem unfair or immoderate.

In regard to the practical possibilities of a Roumanian campaign Dr. Dillon feels that the nation now has it in her power to put in the field about half a million men. In the first line she could place about six army corps, numbering some 300,000 soldiers in all. Dr. Dillon thinks, however, that the value of these troops as a contribution to the conflict would be trebled at the present moment by the strategic position they would occupy, stretching out a hand to the Russians in the direction of Bukovina and pressing the Austro-Hungarians on their flank. It is well to appreciate this advantage at its full value, but by asking too much in terms of territorial concessions it is Dr. Dillon's opinion that the Roumanian Premier runs the danger of obtaining much less than is now offered. "The hour for a decision has struck, because the present conjuncture enables the Roumanians to offer the highest measure of help to the Allies and to secure the largest returns. No state, not even Serbia, will gain as much by so little outlay as Roumania."

To support his contention that delay is dangerous and may prove fatal, Dr. Dillon suggests two conceivable consummations, either of which would materially change the conditions of the war in the east of Europe and impair the worth of Roumania's assistance:

Suppose the Teutons contrive to drive the Russians clean out of Eastern Galicia, or even to immobilize their forces there, Austria, freed from the Slav incursions, would be in a position to fortify herself in Transylvania so effectively as to render the conquest of that province a task which would dismay not only those army chiefs who are at present in favour of remaining inactive, but also those who are impatient to liberate their Roumanian brethren from the misrule of Vienna and Budapest. And this state of things of which an account would have to be rendered, not to any foreign state, but to M. Bratiano's own countrymen, is hardly the goal towards which a commonsense leader would deliberately strive. To risk the whole for the sake of a small part is not a speculation worthy of a statesman.

The other eventuality is a decisive Russian success in Galicia, the reoccupation of Bukovina, and such a strong military position as would render Roumania's co-operation superfluous. What would then happen hardly needs explicit mention. Political motives, which Hungary, whose European cataclysm at any and every cost, would not be slow to supply, might move the Allies regretfully to make terms with that state which would leave the Roumanian frontiers where they are to-day.

News has been received that Lieutenant Hugh G. Neville, 2nd South Wales Borderers, a partner in the firm of Cutler and Lacy, Birmingham, has been wounded for the second time at the Dardanelles.

GERMAN SUBMARINE POLICY.

Statement by Herr von Jagow.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The Associated Press publishes a long statement by Herr von Jagow, the German Foreign Secretary, about the submarine controversy. The chief points of the statement are as follows:—

Enemy passenger ships will not be subjected to attack without warning, provided they respect the maritime code, and will be sunk only when an opportunity for the safety of the passengers and crew is given. The instructions to the German submarine commanders are very precise and definite.

It rests very largely now with our opponents to provide the necessary remaining safeguards by instructing masters to avoid suspicious or hostile actions, or attempts at flight—perhaps it would be best done by revoking the orders to attack submarines, whenever possible, and the promised rewards for such actions.

Neutral merchantmen, including Americans, are exempt from interference, as stated long ago, except when carrying contraband, and will then be destroyed only under the conditions laid down by the International Code, when provision is made for the safety of those aboard.

These two categories restricting submarine procedure against passenger ships and neutral-owned ships cover the cases in which the interests of the United States may be involved and confine the application of retaliatory measures to shipping owned by the belligerents themselves to regulate.

Sometime ago President Wilson tendered his good offices to bring about a modification of these retaliatory measures. Germany then promptly signified her readiness to take advantage of this friendly offer and is still ready to do so.

As to negotiations to supplement the declaration made by Count von Bernstorff, dispatches from Washington report that the American Government itself has decided to begin conversations on this subject. The Imperial Government certainly hopes that a full agreement may be reached which will bar the possibility of future difficulties with the United States arising from the submarine question, and will gladly enter into conversations.

Regarding the Arabic, Herr von Jagow intimated that affidavits that she was torpedoed without warning could not be accepted off-hand, as to do so would be to ignore the "honest belief" of the submarine commander that the Arabic meant to attack him. It is to be hoped therefore that the United States will allow the matter to go to The Hague. The present policy of Berlin, Herr von Jagow continued, while not entirely palatable to German opinion, is based upon the approval of the Kaiser, and therefore will have the support of all. "Mischances cannot be eliminated entirely in war time, nor dangers for non-combatants entirely guarded against, but every precaution has been taken to ease, guard neutrals." Should the present instructions to submarine commanders be exceeded, Germany will not hesitate to give complete satisfaction.

Herr von Jagow's heavy guns are accompanied by a continued discharge of light artillery under the management of Count Bernstorff and his underlings.—Times.

HONGKONG, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1915.

ROUMANIA'S POSITION.

Our Reuter wire of yesterday spoke of an anti-Government demonstration at Bucharest, during which the mobilisation of Roumanians was demanded as a check on any "joining up" between Bulgarians and Germans. This kind of thing is what might have been expected; indeed the wonder is that there has not been more of it. There may be, and presumably are, half a dozen reasons why Roumanians find it inexpedient to join the Allies; but there are at least half a dozen reasons why the will of her people is opposed to her throwing in her lot with our enemies—the first and greatest, perhaps, being that these are her own enemies as well. King Charles of Roumania, the man who, for all he was a German, may be said to have made Roumania, died a year ago, and no one seems to know very clearly in what direction his son Ferdinand's personal sympathies lie. So long as King Charles lived, the Court, at least, remained pro-German. But only the Court; for, when war broke out and the King reminded his Cabinet that the country was bound to Austria by secret military convention, the Cabinet instantly rounded on him and pointed out that this convention was "for defensive purposes only." Finding his political advisers opposed to him, King Charles put the matter to the vote among the Corps of Officers—only to receive a second snub; for, out of 6,000 officers, there were but 100 who were in favour of opposing Russia.

We mention these points as being all the more significant in face of the fact that King Charles was undeniably popular during the whole of his long reign; was, in fact, a man who, on any other subject, could in all probability have carried the whole kingdom with him. Since his death the Roumanian people and their new King have had ample opportunity to see into what ruin and desolation their land would have been led had their late ruler's proposal been listened to. We are probably safe in saying that fear of Russia would of itself be more than sufficient to deter them from taking sides against her. But if Russia is one of their neighbours, Austria (Hungary, at least) is another; and Roumania knows too much, to her cost, about the cruel grip of the Austrians to make it likely that she would willingly lay herself open to invasion by them. Practically speaking, her people may be said to have but one ambition: the establishment of a united Roumania, which, of course, would mean the liberation of the three and a half million of their brethren in Hungary and Transylvania who are still under the domination of the Emperor Francis Joseph.

Of course the Roumanians must know that a part of the Allies' programme would, in all likelihood, be the enlargement of these exiles. Yet they hesitate; and the more we consider their geographical position the less shall we wonder at that hesitation. In a couple of words, if they join the Allies much of their territory is instantly at Bulgaria's and Austria's mercy; if they ally themselves with Austria, Russia can invade them in half an hour. There are, of course, a hundred other considerations: race questions, money—always money—preparedness, etc.; but the geographical side seems to us to stand among the first. That Roumania has a score of old grudges against Austria need hardly be said; that by blood and speech she is tied to Italy is also common knowledge; but these points are, as reckoned nowadays and in view of modern political and military developments, little more than mere sentiment. What the near future may bring is only known to the diplomatists; meanwhile to the outsider it is at least some satisfaction to feel that the war is not likely to be further prolonged by Roumania's taking sides against the Allies.

H. E. and the Voluntary Forces.

His Excellency's remarks in Council yesterday afternoon on the King's recruiting message should be very seriously pondered by the hundred or hundred and fifty men for whose consideration they were primarily intended. That there should still be this number of men doing nothing—out of a small European population whose pride it is to hold the Old Country's end up in the eyes of some hundreds of thousands of non-Britishers—is scarcely a comforting reflection to those who set store by their nationality. The main reason, as the Governor pointed out, why these gentlemen should enrol in one of the voluntary forces of the Colony is that the greater the strength of those forces the more free is the G.O.C. to spare men for the Front from the regular garrison. It is a tolerably sickening reflection that there should be good men here spoiling for a fight with the Germans and yet unable to leave the Colony because other white men are not willing to come forward to help do the work which they are responsible for.

Playing the Game by "the Others."

His Excellency further hinted that there is such a thing as playing the game by one's fellow men, as well as by one's country. "If for no other reason," they should remember that, the stronger these Colonial arm forces were, the less often would the roster of duty." No man that we know of in the voluntary forces of Hongkong ever allows himself to grumble at the duties that he is called on to perform; no man worth his salt would do so were those duties doubled, at a time when help is needed from every man capable of giving it. Nevertheless we do not forget that in all of these forces—especially the Volunteer and Police Reserves—there is quite a large number of men who will never see forty (in some cases fifty) any more: men who physically are past their best and who, in practically every case, are occupying responsible positions which do not leave them an abundance of time or energy for Volunteer or Police pickings. These men, as we have said, carry out nominally the task to which they are told off by their officers; but if there were more members of their particular corps there would be proportionately less work for each man to do. It is well to keep all this in mind, albeit naturally one would rather see men take the higher line and say: "We're too old for the Front, but we're not too old to bear a share in setting the younger fellows free to take a hand in smudging Germany off the map."

The Police Reserves.

While on this matter, one would like to point out that more Europeans are urgently needed for the Police Reserve. It will be seen in another column that twenty-three men from the Police Department are about to leave for active service. Their departure will necessarily narrow down the men at the O.S.P.'s disposal to a very small handful; and meanwhile, come fair weather come foul, police work has to go on as usual. And by police work we mean not only the ordinary patrol duties but Harbour, fire-brigade, charge-room and gaol-warder work. The Indian, Chinese and Portuguese Police Reservists have set a fine example, and it is difficult to believe that there are Europeans who are content to hang back and let these do work for which, in a number of cases, they themselves are far better fitted physically. Surely they can set their own affairs on one side for a few hours a week. The men in the trenches are giving up more than that time. To Hongkong the war has brought no danger and next to no inconvenience; is not this all the more reason why every man should bestir himself and deny himself?

NOTES ON THE CRISIS.

THE NEW YORK PLOTTERS.

Greece and the Enemy.

So the Turks and the Bulgarians are "not satisfied" at the presence of the Allies' troops in Macedonia. Everyone knew that long ago, but the general idea was that a protest would come from Germany (rather than from Turkey) in the form of threats, "ango thunder and blue light." Of course, looked at from the raw justice point of view, the enemy may be said to have legitimate grounds for cursing; but since the Allies' grievance against the Greeks is a somewhat bigger one, quite might reasonably be cried. But how about the self-respect of Greece in all this? It seems to our civilian mind that she is playing the game neither by Britain, by Serbia nor by the Central Powers. If she would but study the sentiments expressed by one of her own ancient philosophers, she would know that hard indeed is the lot of the fool who tries to please everybody. Unless she very speedily strikes out a definite line for herself her name must go down into history as that of a country that could not be loyal or fair to friend or enemy. One would have thought that M. Venizelos was amply strong enough to take the country by the neck and rub in the fact that her honour is very much at stake, that treaties, in civilised eyes, are made to be kept and not broken, and that, if she must offend someone, it is better for her, in the long run, to have Germany for an enemy than the Allies.

Things in Serbia.

At the moment of writing, the only news from Serbia is that of the Bulgarian's claim to having captured "the key to the fortified girdle of Pirot," and of the Serbians' statement that, having retaken Kupralu, they are marching eastwards on Istib. If we accept the one statement it looks as though we ought also to take in the other. Pirot lies some thirty miles southeast of Nish, close to the border, and is apparently the guardian of Nish against Bulgarian intrusion. Naturally it would be difficult to feel surprise at whatever might happen in this part of the country until proper relief from the Allied countries can join the Serbian troops. These latter have been making a magnificent stand, with enemies on at least three sides of them and one feels impatient to hear of the arrival of a really appreciable Franco-British or Italian force in this district. Taking the Serbians' statement as also true, their move eastwards in the direction of Istib looks a hopeful one. Necessarily while the Bulgarians are making a triumphal march in one direction they cannot be stopping a similar march of the enemy's in another, for, in point of numbers, their own army is not a great deal better off than that of the Serbians.

The New York Plot.

The childlike and bland elements in the German and German-American character continue to unfold themselves, and yet another of these beauties has been arrested in New York, charged with entering into a conspiracy to destroy munitions ships. Press and public in New York continue their plain speaking, and we hope it will be taken a little more notice of by Washington than is usually the case. The papers demand "the elimination of a national danger"—and rightly—but they do not tell us how this is to be accomplished. There is but one way, and that is for Washington to do what it has never done yet since war broke out: not, instead of talk, if, as the New York Sun says, these delightful plots can exist while America remains neutral, what would be happening (with all these millions of strugglers within her gates) if she were at war?

RE-HEARING OF THE BAILEY CASE.

Magistrate Reverses His Decision.

This morning Commander Beckwith at the Marine Court reversed his finding in the recent case against Mr. W. S. Bailey, who was fined twenty-five dollars for permitting his launch to ply for hire, towing junk without having the necessary licence. The above decision having been delivered at the previous hearing, the defendant applied for a re-hearing and it was on this, this morning that the conviction was withdrawn.

Mr. P. M. Hodgson, Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown and Mr. Preston, of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Master, appeared for the defendant.

The Crown Solicitor said:—This case, I understand is in the nature of a re-hearing. I was not present at the last hearing, but I have seen the papers and I have also seen the defendant's solicitors in this matter and I have intimated to him and to yourself, the line the Crown is taking in the case. In the first place, I don't think there is any dispute about the actual facts given in evidence before your Worship and it appears that the launch Bailey 2 was found towing in the harbour without a licence. Mr. Bailey the defendant, is the registered owner of this launch and he was charged under section 37 of the Merchant Shipping Ordinance with plying for hire without having the appropriate licence. The words "Ply for hire" in the ordinary common use fairly mean the offering of a vehicle or vessel for the use of the general public and I think that is the meaning which should be read into section 37, under which the charge was made. Now that point of law was referred, with your permission and at the request of the defendant's solicitor to the law officers of the Crown, and they feel that this launch was not plying for hire on September 3 in the right sense of the words as used in the section. But I think it is arguable that there was a contravention of section 3 of the ordinance "trading without a licence," but as this is a re-hearing upon the old charge under section 37, I don't think it would be proper for the Crown to amend the summons by proceeding under section 3 and therefore the Crown does not intend to proceed under section 3 and the defendant should be discharged under section 37, if your Worship agrees. It is a matter for the Crown whether they proceed on a separate charge under section 3, but from the papers it would seem that Mr. Bailey had applied for a licence and had taken steps to obtain a licence and has not wilfully done anything in contravention of the ordinance, or sought to depart from his obligations. In that case the Crown does not intend to proceed any further with the case.

His Worship: to Mr. Preston:—Do you wish to say anything Mr. Preston?

Mr. Preston:—Nothing your Worship, except that perhaps you would order that it is fine now paid be refunded.

His Worship:—This is a re-hearing and on re-considering the case, and in view of the Crown Solicitor's statement, I am inclined to agree that the charge is wrongly laid. That being so the conviction cannot be maintained and I order the case to be dismissed. Without going further into the case the facts before me might very well show that the launch was on September 3 trading without a licence in contravention of section 3 of this ordinance, and Mr. Bailey being the registered owner would be responsible. I recognise the fact that he applied for a licence, but this would not get over the technical breach of the ordinance. No charge in respect of this is before me and I am not therefore called upon to deal with the question; It is a matter entirely for the Crown and if it is not the intention of the Crown to prefer any charge under section 3 there is an end of the matter. I may say that although Mr. Bailey was more than once warned that he

ENGINEERS' LOST TIME.

1,500,000 Hours in 20 Weeks.

The Liverpool Maritime Tribunal on September 18 fixed a large number of Messrs. Cammell, Laird, and Co.'s workmen for persistent loss of time. It was stated that the aggregate loss of time in 20 weeks amounted to 1,500,000 hours.
At the outset, Mr. J. W. P. Laird, on behalf of the firm, stated that, in regard to 238 cases before the Court at the last sitting and adjourned, the representatives of the men concerned had waited upon the managing director of Cammell, Laird. They stated that the men were entirely in the wrong in what they had done, and they gave, as far as was possible on their behalf, an undertaking that such occurrences would not be repeated. On those grounds the firm had withdrawn all the summonses against them. A large number of cases of persistent loss of time were then considered. Only a small proportion of the men charged pleaded "Guilty."

Mr. Laird said that particular care had been taken with regard to the men's time during the past 20 weeks. The average daily number of men employed was 10,349, and the average number of men out on each day of the week was:—Monday, first quarter, 2,135, and the whole day, 1,156; Tuesday, 1,421 and 1,030; Wednesday, 1,439 and 1,231; Thursday, 1,764 and 1,128; Friday, 1,429 and 984; and Saturday, 1,057 and 1,015. The average number out per day for the whole period was 1,552 who lost a quarter, and 1,090 losing the whole day. In other words, 15 per cent. lost a quarter, and about 10½ per cent. did not go into work at all on every day of the whole 20 weeks. The loss of working hours on ordinary working days was a million and a half, and represented a full week's work for nearly 30,000 men; or, alternatively, the time lost practically represented a complete shutting down of the whole establishment for three working weeks. Neither the men themselves nor their societies could plead ignorance of what was going on. Frequent appeals had been made to representative deputations of the men in the works by the managing director of the company, also to the local representatives of the men's unions, pointing out this most disgraceful state of affairs. Seeing that the men had proved deaf to all persuasion, and had shown no improvement in response to appeals either from Ministers of the Crown, the town trade unions, or their employers, the only course was to prosecute them before that tribunal.

Most of the men pleaded illness, and two cases were withdrawn by Mr. Laird.

The tribunal imposed fines ranging from 5s. to 80s., the latter figure being reached in one case only. Two of the complaints were dismissed.

Disturbance in Court.

The announcement of the sentences caused an outbreak of dissatisfaction, and the chairman was interrupted several times by the men as he was giving the judgments. Half a dozen or more of the men interrupting and all attempting to speak at once caused great confusion. "There'll be a revolution in this country," cried one, and such phrases as "It's time the Germans were here if we are to be treated like this," "What did South Wales do? Defy them!" "We are not here as slaves" were shouted from various quarters. The disturbers were asked to leave the Court. "Let's all go," called one of the men—and they all went, giving "three cheers for the Crown, the town trade unions,

A MEMORIAL TO MISS CAVELL.

(To the Editor of the Hongkong Telegraph.)

Sir,—I have taken note of a letter in your issue of the 28th instant signed "An Admirer of Miss Cavell," suggesting a fund to be opened and a committee formed to carry out what form the Memorial should take. I also note in your Editorial of your last evening's issue your willingness to receive subscriptions and generally co-operate in the movement, I beg to say I am very much in sympathy with the scheme and would willingly join a thoroughly representative Committee of business men and others for this purpose, and donate a substantial subscription to make a start.

The form of Memorial to be settled by the Committee. Referring to the Legislative Council Meeting yesterday it seems to many a great pity that His Excellency could not have seen his way to consent to the unofficial members' strong request regarding taking over the German Charities and run them as British Institutions, if this had been done they could have been re-christened "The Cavell Charities" this would have been a splendid Memorial to our departed sister whose worst crime was to "risk her own life to save others from a cruel death." As regards expenses of upkeep I believe the Public if asked would put up a fund to defray the greater part of the expenses.

Yours etc.

THE MERRIE MUMMERS.

Sir: The performance of the "Merrie Mimmers" has been largely advertised as one of the main attractions of to-morrow's fete at Government House, but I understand that the greater part, if not all, of the reserved seats have already been disposed of to privileged persons. Surely this is not as it should be? It would seem reasonable to allow the contents of the stalls to be bought up in advance of opening of the bazaar and to expect the general public to derive such satisfaction as it can from the contemplation of articles which it has not the power to purchase. Yours etc.

OUR LIMBLESS SAILORS AND SOLDIERS. AN APPEAL.

Sir,—The Nation owes a special debt of gratitude to those gallant men who have lost their limbs in the War. On their behalf we make an earnest appeal for additional funds to extend the work at Queen Mary's Convalescent Hospitals, Bexhampton, where these sufferers (officers and men) are provided at the expense of the State with their artificial appliances and taught how to use them.

The Hospitals are officially recognised by the Directors General of the Navy and Army Medical Services and the Lord Commissioners of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea.

Over eight hundred patients are now awaiting admission, among them many men from our Overseas Dominions, and the numbers increase daily. To meet this difficult situation a large outlay has been incurred in the erection and equipment of new Wards, which will shortly be opened.

The work at Bexhampton can best be judged by the results achieved and by the gratitude of these brave men on realising, that with the aid of the wonderful artificial limbs of recent invention, they will be able to obtain employment and make a fresh start in life.

With a view to their future employment and also to provide useful occupation for the men while in hospital, workshops fitted with model motor chassis, electrical appliances, lathes, etc., are being organised, with competent instructors. A man who has lost his right hand will be

MASTER, MALE AND ENGINEER EXAMINATIONS.

For October.

The following are the results of the above examinations held at the Harbour Office during the month of October, 1915: Charles Alexander Balletty, for 2nd Class Engineer. Mario Constant Herbert Motte, for 2nd Mate, passed on the 14th October. Thomas Reid Anderson, for 2nd Class Engineer, passed on the 20th October. taught to write with the left, and classes for other industries will be arranged. An Employment Bureau working in conjunction with existing Societies and employers of labour has also been established, and already a number of men have been placed in good situations. From the numerous offers received, it is hoped through this medium to find suitable employment for every man on his leaving the Hospital.

To maintain and extend this National work, a large additional sum of money is required, and we look with confidence to a ready response to our appeal from public and private sources, notwithstanding the urgency of other claims. Donations sent to the Hon. Treasurer at St. Stephen's House, Westminster, will be gratefully acknowledged.

Yours obediently, FRANCIS LLOYD, Major General, Chairman, C. H. KENDERDINE, Honorary Treasurer.

LOG BOOK.

Japanese Steamer Ashore.

The N.Y.K. steamer Fukuoka-maru, 2,600 tons, on the run between Kobe and Otaru, ran on a rock off Yojima, Kagawa prefecture, west of the Nabeshima light, at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning. Her cargo consisted of 900 tons of rails, 1500 bales of ammonia, and 1,700 barrels of cement. The ammonia and cement were so badly damaged by sea water that it was all jettisoned. Up to yesterday afternoon the steamer had not been refloated.

The Wreck of the "Rufford Hall."

A correspondent of the Japan Gazette, writing from Hakodate on the 9th instant, gives some details of the accident, and particulars as to the cargo:—"The British steamer Rufford Hall, bound from New York for Vladivostok, via Panama Canal and Muroran, stranded on Omasaki, Bentenbima, on the southern side of Tsuruga Straits, about 1 a.m. on the morning of the 6th instant."

"The steamer left New York on the 17th of July, with a cargo consisting of 500 tons of cotton, 40,000 cases of kerosene oil, and about 6,000 tons of steel, tinplate, armoured motor cars and military supplies, and arrived on the 4th at Muroran to take in bunkers. She left Muroran on the morning of the 5th, but while passing through Tsuruga Straits encountered thick weather, and ran ashore on the morning of the 6th."

"The Chinese Officer proceeded to Hakodate in one of the ship's boats for assistance, which was dispatched by noon on the 6th, and hopes were entertained of floating the vessel and bringing her to Hakodate for repairs, the only damage being forward, the forepeak being flooded while there was also some water in the No. 1 hold. On the night of the 7th, however, the weather became threatening, and by daylight the sea was washing over the steamer. Forty five men of the native crew landed in a lifeboat yesterday morning. By noon the gale had increased to typhoon force. 'S.O.S.' signals were sent from the vessel all night, and appeals for assistance were sent by the British Vice-Consul here to the Ominato Naval Station, but it was impossible to send help before this morning on account of the high wind and sea. The vessel broke up during the afternoon of the 8th, only a small portion of the bows remaining above water at the present time. Some time during the gale the captain and the rest of the foreign officers and crew abandoned the doomed ships, and left in one of the lifeboats. Several destroyers and torpedo-boats from the Ominato Naval Station were sent in search of the boat." Messrs. Cornes and Co. have heard from their surveyor, Captain Baikie, as follows:—"I visited the scene of the wreck. The Third Officer, Rae, was drowned; his body has been recovered for burial at Hakodate. The after half of the Rufford Hall lies in 28ft. of water 200 yards off the extreme north of Bentenjima, Omasaki. The forward half is 200 yards further east. It is submerged in 70 feet of water in an extremely exposed position except from the south."

BIG SEIZURE OF ARMS.

Dr. Hinckley—I think it will. If Mr. Newman says that it ought not, in the interests of the Police, to be given out, then I shall be satisfied.

Mr. Newman—The information which he received was not that there were arms being carried, if that will satisfy you. He thought it was something else; he thought it was opium. Where he got his information from I do not know myself.

Dr. Hinckley—I am satisfied. The witness was then cross-examined by Mr. Masso. He stated that he became suspicious because the wheelbarrows were heavily laden, and the legs of the coolies were shaking.

Mr. Masso—Did you think it was opium in this case?—I did not know.

Did you ever think of opium; did you ever expect to find it?—I looked through the planks and there was the shine of the tins.

Was your information to the effect that you would find some opium?—I did not know about opium.

You never heard of opium?—I never heard.

Did you carry a screw-driver in your pocket?—No.

Did you unscrew the planks in order to look at these things through the crevices?—I looked through the small crevices.

I put it to you that the tins were plainly visible? No. The witness added that when the house in Tongshan Road was searched, nothing was found.

In answer to Mr. Newman, re-examining, the detective said that he forced the planks apart because he was sure that there was something inside, owing to the planks being so carefully screwed together. He saw the screws before he saw the tins.

One of the wheelbarrow coolies, employed in a rice shop at No. 533 Tongshan Road, then gave evidence. He stated that last Saturday afternoon he was told by Ng Vung-sing to take some planks to Chapoo Road from the rice shop. He was told to take four bundles of planks, but as they were too heavy for himself he asked for the assistance of another coolie. The bundles were bound by ropes, and the planks were about five thick. Witness asked why the planks were so heavy, and was told by Ng Vung-sing that they contained medicine. Ng Vung-sing also told him that there were three more bundles in his house. He went to fetch the three bundles from 23 Tongshan Road. He had five bundles on his barrow, and the other man had two.

Ng Vung-sing, the witness continued, told him to wait on Chapoo Road until he came, because he was going first. When he was stopped by the detective, Ng Vung-sing was ahead, although they did not see each other. He knew that Ng Vung-sing had a share in the rice shop, and that he lived at No. 23 Tongshan Road. He himself did not know what was inside the planks.

Another coolie, described by the Assessor as "a gentleman of the ancient regime" (he appearing in Court with a queue), gave similar evidence.

F. O. Fitzpatrick, attached to Harbin Road station, spoke to seeing the planks brought to the station last Saturday. He said the planks were tied round in bundles, and there were five or six planks to a bundle. When they untied them there were four planks screwed together, with the boxes containing the arms and ammunition between these four planks. In one instance a bundle consisted of six planks, the inside four being screwed to each other, and there were ten sealed boxes inside. The two outside covers were loose, being tied only with rope. All the twenty-five planks with holes in them contained tins. There were five tins each in three of the bundles, and seven tins in another. Six planks were used to conceal five tins. He was present when the ammunition was counted, and altogether there were 20,800 rounds, and 129 pistols, excluding the two tins which had been brought to Court. Three of the bundles of planks were absolutely empty. In cross-examination by Mr. Masso, the witness stated that the covers—or outside planks—were not screwed. He was not present when a number of the planks were unscrewed at the police station yesterday morning.

Mr. Grant Jones—You say that the outside covers were not attached to the inside planks?—No, only by rope.

Det-Serg. Page then gave evidence. He said he was at the Harbin Road station when the bundles of planks were taken there. He detailed the contents of the tins—revolvers and ammunition—and continued that later in the day he went to 23 Tongshan Road, where he saw the wife of Ng Tsz-ping. She took him, and others, to 804 Wuchang Road; where, in an upstairs room, were Tong Tsz-dan and Ng Vung-sing. Under a bed in the room were a similar, large and small, of a similar nature to those in Court. Tong Tsz-dan told him that he had received the tins from a man named Nielsen. He also said that twenty days before the 15th instant he received a batch—not the tins in the room—and he gave them to Ng Vung-sing. They were to be secretly conveyed to India. He told him that Nielsen was a German. Witness then spoke to Ng Vung-sing. He said he was commissioned by Tsong to have the tins placed in receptacles to be smuggled, and when this was done he returned them to a new house which Tsong was having prepared. On the way to the police station, Ng told him that he was going to India with them about October 21. He and Sub-Inspector Brewster took a rough statement from Tsong on the Saturday night and another on the Sunday morning, and this statement Tsong, signed as being correct.

Mr. Newman read the statement, which stated that until a month ago he (Tong) was employed as an export clerk in Messrs. Garrels, Borneo and Co. Mr. A. Nielsen was also employed as insurance agent and agent for chemicals. He had since left Garrels, Borneo and Co., and tried to get a position with Mr. Everett, of 1a Jinkes Road. He was an American, and a shipping agent. On September 21 he met Mr. Nielsen in Kiangso Road, and was asked if he knew of anyone who would be willing to take a consignment of medicine or chemicals to a foreign country. He said he would find someone within a week, and he arranged for the work to be done by Ng Vung-sing, who was a friend of his whom he knew had been abroad before. On September 23, he went with Ng to the China Paper Mill, where Mr. Nielsen lived, to take delivery of the cargo. At that time he thought that the cargo was chemicals. They took the cargo, which consisted of twenty-two tins, all soldered up, away with them, and took it to No. 23 Tongshan Road, and put it in a deck. Later he saw Mr. Nielsen who told him he had some more cargo, and on this occasion they took 45 tins away, in three barrows. A carpenter was employed to cut out the planks, and becoming suspicious, he opened one of the tin boxes. It was then found that they contained gun ammunition, and Ng Tsz-ping, who was told of this, insisted on the immediate removal of the goods to another shop. About two weeks ago Mr. Nielsen gave him a paper on which was written the address in India where the cargo was to be conveyed. Mr. Nielsen did not

A BUSHMAN'S PATRIOTISM.

Travelled 13,000 Miles to Ballot.

The following remarkably interesting letter, written by Melrose Maister, of the Lancashire Fusiliers, who was wounded in action in the Gallipoli Peninsula and is now a patient at the Stepping Hill Military Hospital, near Stockport, Lancs., has been received by Mrs. Fitzgerald, of Ballynion, Co. Cork, who has contributed eggs to the national collection. It has been the practice to write on the eggs the names and addresses of the contributors, and it was in this way Maister got the name of Mrs. Fitzgerald. His letter is as follows:—

Dear Mrs. Fitzgerald.—These few lines to you are from an Australian Bushman, who has travelled thirteen thousand miles to do his duty to the Mother-Country. After arriving here in February last, I enlisted in the Lancashire Fusiliers, and went to the Dardanelles, where we fought with the famous Irish regiments, the Dublin and Munster Fusiliers—God bless them! I, as one soldier, will never forget the bravery displayed by these Irish boys. I have something long to remember, indeed. I myself was wounded in a bayonet charge on June 4 last, and that day I shall never forget.

All the boys fought for their lives, and we had a splendid gain on the day, and killed many Turks. After two operations, I have had two fingers and half the palm of my left hand removed. I was also hit in the breast, but, luckily, that was not serious. I have no regrets for my sacrifice; many are worse off. I am only glad to be one Australian serving, as I am, in an English regiment.

I have no friends here in this part of the world, but my people are always thinking of me, and that is some satisfaction. I have secured your name and address off an egg, so excuse my writing you these few lines. I enjoyed eating that egg, and I thought it was only right you should know it. If you feel disposed to write back to me, I shall be only too pleased to receive a line from you. —Believe me, yours faithfully, MELROSE MAISTER.

Det-Serg. Page said that he afterwards learned that the goods were destined for Calcutta.

The witness was cross-examined, after which the Court adjourned until Tuesday.

THE SHAUTAKOK MURDER CHARGE.

Interesting Opening by the Crown.

This afternoon at the Police Court, before Mr. R. E. Lindeell the hearing was commenced of the case in which a Chinese man and his mother stands charged of murder at Shantakok.

Mr. G. N. Orme, of the Crown Solicitor's office, appeared for the prosecution and Mr. Otto Kong Sing defended.

Mr. Orme outlining the case for the prosecution said that the deceased woman was a native of Demarara, having been born in 1874. She married another resident of the same place and he died and left her all his property. In 1898 she married a man from Tam Sui Hang, the place where the murder is alleged to have taken place. He had emigrated to Demarara at a time when Tam Sui Hang had been Chinese territory. In 1899 the village became part of the New Territory, and, as such was subject to British law. The marriage had taken place under Christian rites and therefore, when in 1904, the parties returned to Tam Sui Hang a position arose which was somewhat peculiar. It appeared that prior to leaving the village the deceased's husband, Wan Tak-wan, had been married according to native customs and the deceased on her arrival found the first wife, who had two sons, in the position of his fat and herself merely a concubine. At the same time, under British law she retained control of her property which remained at her disposal. At the end of 1908, Wan Tak-wan, who had caught a severe cold in the typhoon of that year, died and the deceased was left to settle her affairs with the fat, the woman prisoner, as best she could. Through 1907 fresh dispositions of the property were made and the affairs came before the Land Court for settlement. The female prisoner and her second son, the first defendant were naturally interested in the property of the deceased, which according to their idea should have gone to the family, but of which the bulk still remained in the hands of the deceased. The latter took great care of herself and appeared to use considerable caution as to what she ate and drank, and generally seemed to be alarmed over her position out there. In 1911 she adopted a boy whom she had bought, and from his arrival she seemed to worry less. At about this time the deceased gave the first prisoner the sum of $200 to set up in business in Canton; he went there and established himself. However, the adoption of the son was a matter of alarm to those who had, or thought they had, interest in the property of the deceased. The first prisoner spent about a year at Canton and then returned taking up his residence at Shantakok Market, but occasionally paying visits at Tam Sui Hang.

In the beginning of September of this year the time came for the celebration of the Ching Ming festival and the first prisoner, as was usual, would have to make the pilgrimage to do homage to the family ancestors. He made arrangements to go, but, three or four days before he was due to start, he sent for the deceased's adopted son and told him he was unable to go and that the other would have to go in his stead, and on September 10 the adopted son went into the country to pay his respects to the ancestors of his adopted family.

On the night of September 18 the family went to bed as usual. A young adopted daughter slept with the deceased and the first prisoner slept by himself in a cook-loft with a window. In the morning the first prisoner arrived at the police station with the report that during the night the house had been broken

COMMERCIAL.

Yarn.
The yarn market at Shanghai is almost a nonentity, business having fallen to exceedingly small dimensions. Very few sales have taken place, and those sales that have taken place are at practically the same prices as those prevailing a week ago. Sales reported were:—12's, 100 bales Anchor at Tls. 101.00, 500 bales heavy Double Elephant at Tls. 105.00; 16's, 500 bales Water-moon at Tls. 108.00.

Cotton.
The Shanghai cotton market has been practically at a stand still during the week with an inclination of prices in favour of purchasers. The price of foreign staples having advanced a trifle over last week's figures as though the local supply is not as bad as was anticipated, and that there may be a standing amongst buyers for even lower rates. Last week's prices have hardly been maintained. The latest Liverpool quotations are:—mid. American 7.25d., Egyptian 9.85d., Bengal 5.30d.

British Order for Japanese Mousseline.

Some time ago, mousseline weavers in Tokyo and Osaka sent samples to England in response to inquiries. According to the Asahi, the Tokyo Mousseline Co. has received an order for 400 bales through the medium of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, and shipments are now being made from 50 to 80 bales a month. Lately, the Mousseline Co. has been approached by a British firm in Yokohama with an order for 500 bales. Negotiations are now in progress regarding price and other particulars, and it is expected that satisfactory business will result shortly.

Cotton Growing in Brazil.
A report from the British Consul at Sao Paulo shows that the ever-increasing demand for home consumption has greatly favoured the cultivation of cotton in that State, where are to be found numerous cotton factories increasing yearly in number and importance. Some ten years ago only 8,300 hectares were planted with cotton, producing 850,000 kilograms of unginned cotton, equal to about 2,500,000 kilograms of ginned cotton. In 1912 the cotton-growing area reached over 20,400 hectares, producing 13,738,000 kilograms of unginned cotton. The kind of cotton grown in the State of Sao Paulo is for the most part of American origin and is said to be superior in quality to Indian cotton. Other varieties are grown, among them several kinds of Egyptian cotton. Sowing takes place in September and October; picking in May and June.

Shanghai Piece Goods.
The piece goods business during the week has been of a very flimsy nature, the market in some instances being reasonably good while in others decidedly weak and unconvincing. There is undoubtedly a tendency towards improvement; home advanced prices and the China market's demands should be sufficient to cause a very firm tone to prevail. However, the dealer, still harping upon the unsettled question of future government, still refuses to have any confidence. Yuenlong auctioned a considerably less quantity of cargo this week, and a rather firmer market was the result. Gray shirtings advanced in price a trifle with an improving tendency, most other goods only maintaining last week's rates which were really very unsatisfactory. The auction generally was none too brisk, although the demand for river ports was on the better side. Kungping auction results were also very uninteresting. Although prices were steady there was a downward tendency. Here also the demand for river ports was considerably improved, the result being probably owing to an improvement in the exchange of the ports. Ewo auction was a general disappointment, several lots having to be withdrawn, the bidding being weak or lifeless throughout. Clearances generally have been bad, which may be accounted for partially by the wet weather.

Witness asked him his friend's name, and he replied that it was Nielsen. He stated that there was a pocket book and some papers which contained names and addresses. His friend was particularly anxious that these addresses should not be brought before the Court. Witness said he did not know any particular
